

would have great difficulties to sue them in Europe or America. Illustration II hereabove explains that Commission Agents in Siam will be personally responsible to Siamese customers, unless the latter have agreed expressly to the contrary in the contract.

As to the word "residence", it was used in correspondence with the old terminology which has been modified by the Revising Committee, and the word "domicile" is to be substituted to it.

The illustrations for the words "if the principal is, and has his domicile abroad," are consequently as follows:

I. - The "Automobile Co." is in Paris: This firm is abroad and has its domicile abroad. The Commission Agent in Bangkok cannot discharge himself of his responsibility (unless otherwise agreed by both parties).

II. - The principal A has his domicile in Siam, but is as a fact abroad, in a journey: the Commission Agent may discharge himself of responsibility by disclosing the name of the principal (paragraph 2).

III. - The principal A is a merchant of Singapore (domicile abroad) which happens to be in Bangkok for his business: A, instead of the Commission Agent, can be sued by the Siamese buyer during he stays in Siam and taken as responsible under

. section 327, since he is then known by the
