

the principal knows or ought to have known of the renunciation by the agent.

887. — The principal is not bound to third persons for the consequence of acts done by the agent after determination or extinction of the agency, if such persons knew or ought to have known of the extinction.

888. — Determination or extinction of the agency for any cause whatsoever is deemed to be known to third persons after three successive advertisements in a local paper.

889. — On determination or extinction of the agency the principal can require the surrender of any written authority delivered to the agent.

CHAPTER VI. SUBAGENCY.

890. — The agent cannot appoint a subagent, unless he be allowed by the principal to do so, or unless by custom a subagent may be appointed.

891. — An agent who has appointed a subagent although he was not allowed by the principal or by the principal knows or ought to have known of the renunciation by the agent.

887.—The principal is not bound to third persons for the consequence of acts done by the agent after determination or extinction of the agency, if such persons knew or ought to have known of the extinction.

888.—Determination or extinction of the agency for any cause whatsoever is deemed to be known to third persons after three successive advertisements in a local paper.

889.—On determination or extinction of the agency, the principal can require the surrender of any written authority delivered to the agent.

CHAPTER VI.

SUBAGENCY.

890.—The agent cannot appoint a subagent, unless he be allowed by the principal to do so, or unless by custom a subagent may be appointed.

891.—An agent who has appointed a subagent although he was not allowed by the principal or by custom to do so is liable for all the acts done by that subagent in such capacity.

892. — The agent who has lawfully appointed a subagent is not liable to the principal for the acts done by the subagent unless the principal proves that the agent has not selected the subagent with such care as may be expected from a person of ordinary prudence.

893. — If the discretion left to the agent for the appointment of a subagent has been limited to persons designated by name by the principal, the agent is not liable for the acts done by any such subagent.

894. — The principal has a direct cause of action against the subagent for his rights arising out of the subagency.

895. — The subagent has a direct cause of action against the principal for his rights arising out of the subagency.

896. — The principal is bound to third persons by the acts done by a lawfully appointed subagent within the scope of the authority and in the name of the principal, in the same way as if such acts were done by the agent.

custom to do so is liable for all the acts done by that subagent in such capacity.

892.—The agent who has lawfully appointed a subagent is not liable to the principal for the acts done by the subagent unless the principal proves that the agent has not selected the subagent with such care as may be expected from a person of ordinary prudence.

893.—If the discretion left to the agent for the appointment of a subagent has been limited to persons designated by name by the principal, the agent is not liable for the acts done by any such subagent.

894.—The principal has a direct cause of action against the subagent for his rights arising out of the subagency.

895.—The subagent has a direct cause of action against the principal for his rights arising out of the subagency.

896.—The principal is bound to third persons by the acts done by a lawfully appointed subagent within the scope of the authority and in the name of the principal, in the same way as if such acts were done by the agent.