

33. — In so far as they are not contrary to or inconsistent with the provisions of this Chapter VI the provisions of the Book on Obligations concerning Agency apply to the management of the property of the absent person.

34. — If a person has left his residence and it has been uncertain for seven years whether he is living or dead, the Court may, on the application of the Public Prosecutor or of any interested person, make an order declaring that such person has disappeared.

The above period of seven years is reduced to three years when the last reliable evidence shows that the absent person was in a dangerous peril of his life such as having been involved in a shipwreck or in a war.

35. — When the order of the Court declaring that a person has disappeared has become final, such person is deemed to have died.

His estate shall devolve on his heirs according to the Law on Inheritance.

36. — When the whole or part of the estate of the disappeared person has been transferred to his heirs and the disappeared person comes back, the heirs are bound to return to him such estate or part of the estate according to such provisions of the Book on Obligations concerning restitution for undue enrichment as refer to restitutions made by persons in good faith.

37. — The right to claim the return of the whole or part of the estate as provided by the foregoing section is extinguished by prescription one year after the day when the disappeared person has come back.

33.—In so far as they are not contrary to or inconsistent with the provisions of this Chapter VI the provisions of the Book on Obligations concerning Agency apply to the management of the property of the absent person.

34.—If a person has left his residence and it has been uncertain for seven years whether he is living or dead, the Court may, on the application of the Public Prosecutor or of any interested person, make an order declaring that such person has disappeared.

The above period of seven years is reduced to three years when the last reliable evidence shows that the absent person was in a dangerous peril of his life such as having been involved in a shipwreck or in a war.

35.—When the order of the Court declaring that a person has disappeared has become final, such person is deemed to have died.

His estate shall devolve on his heirs according to the Law on Inheritance.

36.—When the whole or part of the estate of the disappeared person has been transferred to his heirs and the disappeared person comes back, the heirs are bound to return to him such estate or part of the estate according to such provisions of the Book on Obligations concerning restitution for undue enrichment as refer to restitutions made by persons in good faith.

37.—The right to claim the return of the whole or part of the estate as provided by the foregoing section is extinguished by prescription one year after the day when the disappeared person has come back.