

Illustration : — On the 1st of April 2460, A buys from B the goods and furniture filling the building which B uses both as shop and dwelling house. Instead of taking at once possession of the said goods and furniture, A finds more convenient to agree with B that delivery will take place on the 1st of May only. On the 19th of April, C, a creditor of B, applies to the Court for a bankruptcy order against B and for the appointment of an interim receiver. On the 20th of April the Court appoints the interim receiver and directs him to take immediate possession of B's property. On the 21st the interim receiver attaches B's property including the goods and furniture sold to A. As these goods and furniture were movables which can be acquired without registration and were found in B's possession, their attachment is valid ; A cannot claim them back as his own property; he can only, as an ordinary creditor, apply to the official receiver for the payment of such debts as may be substantiated by the non-delivery of the goods and furniture purchased.

---

CHAPTER II.

---

ACQUISITION BY THE EFFECT OF LAW.

28. — Things are acquired by the effect of law when the transfer of ownership results from the application of a law with or without the consent of the owner, such as in case of expropriation or requisition by the State, or of execution on goods by the State or by a private person empowered to do so' by the Civil or Criminal Procedure Laws, or of forfeiture to the State by application of the Penal Laws.

Illustration :—On the 1st of April 2460, A buys from B the goods and furniture filling the building which B uses both as shop and dwelling house. Instead of taking at once possession of the said goods and furniture, A finds more convenient to agree with B that delivery will take place on the 1st of May only. On the 19th of April, C, a creditor of B, applies to the Court for a bankruptcy order against B and for the appointment of an interim receiver. On the 20th of April the Court appoints the interim receiver and directs him to take immediate possession of B's property. On the 21st the interim receiver attaches B's property including the goods and furniture sold to A. As these goods and furniture were movables which can be acquired without registration and were found in B's possession, their attachment is valid ; A cannot claim them back as his own property ; he can only, as an ordinary creditor, apply to the official receiver for the payment of such debts as may be substantiated by the non-delivery of the goods and furniture purchased.

---

CHAPTER II.

---

ACQUISITION BY THE EFFECT OF LAW.

28.—Things are acquired by the effect of law when the transfer of ownership results from the application of a law with or without the consent of the owner, such as in case of expropriation or requisition by the State, or of execution on goods by the State or by a private person empowered to do so' by the Civil or Criminal Procedure Laws, or of forfeiture to the State by application of the Penal Laws.